PASSENGER CARS CRASH HEAD-ON

TRAFFIC IS TIED UP TWO HOURS BY TRACTION WRECK NEAR GLENN HOME—SEVERAL ARE SLIGHTLY INJURED AND ONE IS TAKEN TO HOSPITAL.

CAR VESTIBULES CRUSHED

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., April 12.—Traffic was tied up for nearly two hours, two cars were badly damaged, and several people were slightly injured shortly after 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when two cars on the Terre Haute, Indianapolis & Eastern Traction line, crashed head-on on a straight stretch of track near the Glenn Home, about five miles east of Terre Haute. One of the cars was a limited bound for Indianapolis, and was filled with people, while the other was on a test run and carried only the crew. One of the motormen escaped by jumping.

What caused the accident has not been determined, as company officials last night said that an investigation had not been made and probably would not be made until Monday.

Car on Trial Trip.

Limited car No. 23, eastbound was in charge of Motorman Hankins and Conductor Huff of Greencastle. Extra car No. 129 was in charge of Motorman Belfy of Lafayette avenue, and was returning from a trial trip to Seelyville. It had just crossed the rise over the viaduct, and was on a down grade when the accident occurred.

Motorman Belfy on the extra car saw that a collision was inevitable and after applying the brakes he jumped into the smoking compartment, barely in time to avoid the crash, which crushed the vestibules of both cars. Motorman Hankins also seeing that the crash could not be averted, jumped from his car and was uninjured.

Perth Man in Hospital.

When the cars came together all the passengers were badly shaken up and some of them bruised. Mr. Muncie of Perth suffered an injury to one knee and he was brought to the Union Hospital in this city. He is in charge of Dr. O. O. Alexander.

Cars were called from the barns and both the wrecked cars were towed back for repairs, while the passengers were transferred to another car. The track was cleared shortly after 6 o'clock.

Auditor E. J. Davis of the traction company said last night that a siding was only a short distance east of where the wreck occurred, and said he did not know why the extra car was not in the "clear" for the regular.

Death of Joseph B. Sellers.

The death of Joseph B. Sellers, an aged and well-known resident of this vicinity, occurred at his home east of the city Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, after an illness of several months' duration. His death was caused by a complication of diseases. The deceased was 71 years old. The funeral will be held at the Sellers home Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. G. H. L. Beeman, former pastor of the Presbyterian church of this city, will conduct the services. The interment will be in the Putnamville cemetery.

Mr. Sellers had been ill for twenty-one months and had been confined to his bed for nineteen months. He is survived by a wife and five children, one daughter, Miss Cora Belle, of this city, and four sons, Grant, Homer and Frank of North Salem and Ernest of Greencastle. The deceased was a veteran of the Civil War and was a member of the 27th Indiana Volunteers. He was a life-long member of the Presbyterian church of this city.

Christian Church Service Tonight.

Christian church revival tonight. Subject, "Why the Devil Came to Church." Splendid audiences at both services yesterday. Two baptisms at the close of the Sunday evening services. The revival services will be announced from night to night. The continuation of the meeting will depend upon the interest shown by the church membership and the interested people of the community.

WHIPPED MAN WHO TRADED BAD LAND

MRS. ELIZA F. MORAN OF CLOVERDALE, WHO RECENTLY FILED SUIT TO RECOVER LANDS TRADED FOR ILLINOIS FARM, HAS DEEDS RETURNED TO HER—SON-IN-LAW THEN THRASHES LAND DEALER.

HAD TO PAY $20.00 FINE

An Illinois land man, who misrepresented land traded to Mrs. Eliza F. Moran of Cloverdale, was thoroughly convinced that Putnam county people are not to be trifled with, last week. For beside being forced to return the deeds to the Putnam county land back to their rightful owner, he was given a good thrashing by Mrs. Moran's son-in-law, who went to Illinois to get the matter straightened up.

Joseph C. Fortner, of McLennan, Ill., is the land man who traded an Illinois farm to Mrs. Moran for some farm land in Cloverdale township and some farm land in Lawrence county. After the trade had been made and the deeds exchanged, Mrs. Moran learned that the title to the land traded her was not good and that Fortner had misrepresented the land to her.

The woman immediately, through her attorneys, Lyon & Peck, filed suit in the Putnam County Court, asking that the deeds be set aside. Her attorneys then took the matter up with Mr. Fortner, and, after some correspondence, he agreed to trade back rather than stand trial in the case.

As Mr. Peck was unable to go to Illinois last week Mrs. Moran's son-in-law, O. O. McDonald went to Illinois to straighten up the matter. Mr. McDonald, to show his contempt for the landman, went at him in a pugilistic manner. When Fortner managed to get away from the Putnam county farmer he found himself to be a badly whipped and battle scared land trader. McDonald paid a $20 fine for his action but he says it was easily worth that amount to whip Fortner.

BETTER APPLES SLOGAN OF WETZ

STATE ENTOMOLOGIST C. H. BALDWIN OF INDIANAPOLIS HERE TODAY TO ASSIST THE LOCAL ORCHARD MEN IN PUTTING THEIR TREES IN THE BEST CONDITION—AT WETZ ORCHARDS TODAY.

IS LOOKING FOR DISEASE

"Better fruit" is the slogan of Will Wetz, the former Indianapolis but now Greencastle man, who has leased several orchards near Greencastle and who now is busily engaged in cultivating them. Mr. Wetz, who first became known to Greencastle when he came here to buy the apple crop two years ago, and who bought the greater part of the crop here last year, has now become a citizen of Greencastle and will locate here permanently.

Since he came to Greencastle he has been very active in promoting apple and fruit growing in this county. This year he has leased several orchards, containing in all about 10,000 trees. This spring he is cultivating the orchards so as to get the best possible results from them. After exhausting his knowledge of methods of cultivation, Mr. Wetz has appealed to the state for assistance and today, C. H. Baldwin, state entomologist, came to Greencastle and with Mr. Wetz visited the orchards he has under lease, to look them over and suggest anything he can for the benefit of the orchards.

One thing he especially will look into is apple tree diseases. He will ascertain if any diseases, not already discovered by Mr. Wetz, are damaging the orchards and if he finds any he will recommend treatment.

VAN HISE CASE IS NEAR END

EVIDENCE IN CASE IN WHICH BRAZIL GIRL IS SEEKING DAMAGES OF $6,000 IS ALL IN AND ARGUMENTS WERE BEGUN LATE THIS MORNING—CASE TO JURY THIS AFTERNOON.

GIRL STRUCK BY A CAR

The damage suit of Benton Van Hise, of Brazil, against the Terre Haute, Indianapolis & Eastern Traction company, in which Mr. Van Hise asks $6,000 damages for injuries received by his daughter, Nadine Van Hise, who was struck by a traction car at the Big Walnut bridge, west of town several years ago, went to the jury this afternoon.

The young lady with some companions had been picnicking on Walnut creek, west of Greencastle, on the day of the accident. Late in the afternoon the young folks went to the tracks to catch a car home. Miss Van Hise was on the bridge over Big Walnut, when a passenger car approached. Before she could get off of the bridge the car struck her and knocked her down. Her father alleges that her injuries are permanent.

The evidence of the plaintiff was closed Saturday and the traction company, which placed several motormen on the stand, closed its evidence at 10 o'clock this morning. Arguments were begun before noon and the case went to the jury this afternoon.

SUDDEN DEATH OF ORA A. BOSWELL

WELL KNOWN BIG FOUR EMPLOYEE IS ATTACKED WITH FATAL ATTACK OF HEART DISEASE AT HIS HOME NORTHWEST OF TOWN SUNDAY MORNING.

THE FUNERAL ON MONDAY

Ora A. Boswell, age 36, a well-known railroad man of this city, was stricken with an attack of heart trouble at his home northwest of town Saturday morning about 3 o'clock, which resulted in his death Saturday evening at 10 o'clock.

The funeral was held at the Baptist church on Little Walnut creek this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. Bert D. Beck, pastor of the Locust Street Methodist church of this city, conducted the funeral services. The interment was in the Baptist cemetery.

Mr. Boswell was taken ill Saturday morning when he arose about 3 o'clock. He suffered a fainting spell and was forced to go to bed again. He went to the office of Dr. W. R. Hutcheson about 9 o'clock. Dr. Hutcheson warned him of his condition and he was instructed to take a cab home and remain quiet for the day. He did not heed the warning, however, but walked to the Big Four station, where he is employed and told the other employees there that he would not be able to work that day. Boswell was taken ill after he had retired Saturday night and succumbed to the attack of heart trouble before medical attention could be summoned.

Mr. Boswell is one of the best known men in the railroad circles of this section of the state. He has been employed with the Big Four railroad company as car repairer here for several years. Mr. Boswell is survived by a wife and two daughters, Olive and Lucy Worth.

Allen Moore returned to Indianapolis today after a several days' visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Moore, of this city. C. W. Chewning returned to his home in Indianapolis after visiting Allen Moore for a few days.

HORSE IS INJURED IN RUNAWAY SUNDAY

A horse owned by Austin Hendricks, a farmer residing several miles north of the city, became frightened while standing hitched in front of the residence of George Huffman on south Jackson street Sunday afternoon, broke loose and dashed north on Jackson street. The buggy was overturned at the southwest corner of the square and the horse was thrown to the street and badly injured. The buggy was badly damaged.

The horse in its wild dash north on Jackson street, attempted to turn the corner at the southwest corner of day for a several days' visit with Mr. the square and the buggy struck a rig driven by W. J. Ashton. The horse was thrown heavily to the street and a severe injury was inflicted on its left hip. Bystanders held the horse down after it had fallen to the street and the harness was loosened. The top of the buggy was jerked from the bed or the vehicle near the intersection of Poplar and Jackson. The horse was taken to the home of its owner and the buggy was removed to a carriage shop for repairs. The vehicle driven by Mr. Ashton was not damaged.

Mrs. J. Cline and daughter, Miss Isabelle, of Chicago, came here to day for a several days' visit with Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Phillips and family.

ATHLETIC BOARD AND FACULTY COMMITTEE TO BANUOET TUESDAY

The faculty athletic committee composed of Professor W. M. Blanchard, N. W. Barnes, H. B. Longden, F. C. Tilden and R. B. von KleinSmid will banquet the alumni athletic board at Florence Hall next Tuesday evening. All nine members of the board are expected.

President Grose, and the three coaches, Grim, Holmes and Bogle, will also be present as guests of the occasion.

The "get-together" idea is to permeate the affair. A round-the-table discussion of athletic conditions at DePauw will be held by those present. A special toast list will be arranged and announced later.

"PREPS" UNABLE TO SECURE FAST GAMES FOR SCHEDULE

Coach Jordan and Captain Denman of the Academy baseball team have had difficulty in securing games for this season's schedule because of the fact that a number of the schools with which they have played games in previous years are not turning out fast teams this year. Two games with Roachdale high school have been scheduled. The complete schedule will be announced soon.

The team will consist of the following men: Bittles, third base; Denman, (captain, shortstop; Simson, second base; Shelby, first base; Simson or Huckleberry, pitcher; O'Hair or Rippe-toe, catcher; Reed, Grose and Tillotson, outfield positions.

ELDERBERRY BLOSSOM WINE.

To every quart of elderberry blossoms add one gallon of water and four pounds of granulated sugar. Boil sugar and water together and pour over the blossoms while hot. Add the juice of one lemon, to each gallon. When cool add one tablespoonful of liquid yeast to every gallon. Cover lightly and let stand for three or four days to ferment. Then strain and add the white of one well beaten egg to each gallon. Let stand for a couple of days, then bottle tightly. Be sure to allow sufficient time for the wine to ferment. It will be well to tie the cheese cloth over the mouths of the bottles for a week before sealing.

ens, and he agreed to furnish the feed for her for the first year. She set the five hens and they came off with sixty-two chickens, forty-seven of which were pullets. She sold 12 cockerels for $4.46. At the beginning of the second year she purchased three incubators and brooders. The third year she sold 167 dozen eggs and $43 worth of broilers. She had a large hen house built and starts out this year with 500 pullets. She has already sold $80 worth of broilers and has more than 200 young chicks besides the three incubators full of eggs for the third batch. She assists her mother in the house and does all the work incident to the chicken industry. She ships all her eggs and broilers to Chicago where she realizes the top of the market. She has established a reputation among hotels and restaurants in that city and they are sure that the produce they purchase of her is fresh and wholesome.

She has made arrangements with a number of butchers for their scraps and for the cracklings left after rendering out lard, and she drives the team to get them to feed her fowls. She plans to build two chicken houses of cement blocks. And expects to start out next year with 1,500 laying hens.

As if the Democratic primary could create excitement enough, Leslie Vandament, the local "speed artist," pulled off a stunt Friday that surely makes a record for "going" in these days of fast traveling. Without any previous thought or preparation for such a trip, but missing meeting a party on the northbound train on the Monon, he determined to "beat it" to Crawfordsville. The train was leaving the station as the rider reached the court house square. But as the train pulled into the depot at Crawfordsville on time, Vandament was there to meet it, boarded the train, saw his party, transacted his business, and left as the train started again on its journey. Had it not been that business required him at home, he might have gone on and greeted his party on the arrival of the train in Chicago; but he concluded that he had "laid it over" the Monon enough for one day, and so returned home in time to cast his first vote at the primary election that was on.

BACK TO SCENES OF MANY BATTLES

Former Deputy Visits Dodge City, Where He Helped Keep Peace When Town Was Wild

HE HELPED TO CAPTURE OUTLAWS

"Bill" Tighman Led the Band That Ended the Career of Desperado Doolin—For Forty Years a Man-Hunter.

Dodge City, Kas.—"Bill" Tighman, veteran plainsman, peace officer and gun fighter in Dodge City in the days when the cowboys ruled the Southwest, is a visitor here, and the old-timers are holding talkfests every day. And their subject is always of the days of 25 years ago and the men who made history in the days when the cowboys ruled the town.

Tighman was first a deputy marshal under "Bat" Masterson when that gunman maintained a semblance of peace over more than 5,000 cowboys, whose only diversion was on their periodical trips to Dodge City, the headquarters of the cattle country. The wages of months went in a few days—often in a few hours—on those visits, and the subsequent wild antics of the visitors would have broken the nerves of any officer, except those men of cool determination and lightning quickness on the "draw" and the "drop."

Along with Masterson and Tighman are to be remembered "Chalk" Beeson, Wyatt Earp and a dozen others whose names and deeds have been almost forgotten by the younger generation, but were known far and wide over the cattle country in the eighties.

Tighman is almost 60 years of age now and for more than forty years he has been a man hunter. He is still straight and supple, in spite of his adventurous life, always on the frontier. His eye is as clear and his actions as agile, old-timers say, as when he was a stripping deputy and went forth to quell a bunch of drunken cowboys bent on shooting up the town. Tighman talks but little of the tight places in which his duty has placed him, and not at all of the men who lie buried in Dodge's "Boot Hill," the burying ground of the men who died with their boots on.

The western end of the State was unorganized in those days. Ford county extended to the Rocky Mountains and justice was swift and summary. When officers went out to bring in men wanted by the court their orders were to bring them "dead or alive," and usually there was no preference as to which state. An officer expected no assistance from State or nation in the enforcement of laws. He was elected by the cattlemen and administered the law they desired.

Tighman played his part in the hazardous game for several years. In 1889 he took part in the rush to the new country when the Oklahoma strip was opened. Immediately he was in demand as a peace officer and he has served in various capacities in the State ever since he landed there. He headed the officers that broke up the Dalton and Doolin gangs, capturing the leader of the latter single-handed after a desperate struggle.

He followed "Bill" Doolin for months, finally closing in on the desperado in a barber shop in a small town near the Kansas border. As he reclined in the barber's chair Doolin saw the reflection of the officer in the mirror as he stepped in the door. He attempted to draw his gun in spite of his disadvantage and Tighman closed with him rather than kill him, as he might have done.

Both were powerful men and the struggle ended only after the shop had been wrecked and Tighman pinned his man to the floor in a corner. Doolin was a man devoid of fear and had strong friends. Within a short time after he had been lodged in jail friends bribed the jailer, it is alleged, and the outlaw fled. Another pursuit and a posse cornered him in a shanty on the border. Doolin refused to surrender and fought until he fell riddled with bullets.

Other pursuits of the Oklahoma had men were as thrilling and dangerous, and it is after forty years of this work that "Bill" Tighman is back in Dodge City to take a view of the scenes where he started on a career that has made him one of the most widely known officials in the Southwestern country.

HAS FIRST ESPERANTO BRIDE.

Old, Old Story Told in Universal Language.

San Francisco—According to D. R. Parrish, of Los Angeles, who arrived here recently, he has the first "Esperanto bride."

"Mi amas vin" is the universal language phrase for the old, old story, and when Parrish was in Copenhagen recently he murmured it to a young lady who didn't have to know Esperanto to understand what it was about. Esperanto is now the language of the couple's household.

CONFIRMED PROOF.
Residents of Greencastle Cannot Doubt What Has Been Twice Proved.

In gratitude for complete relief from aches and pains of bad backs—from distressing kidney ills—thousands have publicly recommended Doan's Kidney Pills. Residents of this vicinity who so testified years ago, now say the results were permanent. This testimony doubly proves the worth of Doan's Kidney Pills to Greencastle kidney sufferers.

Mrs. M. Shelley, South St., Danville, Ind., says: "I suffered for a long time from backache that robbed me of strength and energy. Hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills I got a supply and began taking them. Since then I have not had lumbago and my kidneys have acted properly."

Re-Endorsement.
On June 6, 1912, Mrs. Shelley added: "My former public statement in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills was all right in every particular. I am glad to confirm all I said about this remedy."

TOWN'S PECAN CROP

Ninety Carloads is Shipped From Brownwood, Texas, Valued at $225,000.

Brownwood, Texas—Ninety carloads of pecans were shipped from the Brownwood district, breaking all previous records. The crop has brought growers $225,000, selling at six cents and upward per pound. The majority of the growers are farmers and the profit from their trees is considered "velvet."

Of all the trees in the entire section only five per cent is cultivated. The largest and old trees yield the best nuts, bringing as high as 20 and 25 cents per pound. One farmer near Ballinger made $300 out of one of these trees. Such a tree, however, is a rarity.

Growers are now planting other nut trees, and in several instances are even irrigating for growth of nuts. The next ten years in the Ballinger-Brownwood districts will probably see them become the richest and greatest nut centers in the world.

The farmer now looks to his pecan trees as no mean asset. Large forces of pickers are busy during October and November gathering the nuts. Often the grower allows the pickers half of what they gather as their pay.

A NEW GOAT INDUSTRY.

Mohair, Milk and Goat Venison An Important Industry.
Edmonton, Alberta—Farmers in central Alberta have imported more than 1,500 two-year Angora goats from Oregon and Montana since last July, and it is predicted that fully ten thousand will be brought into the district during the next twelve months. There is every promise that the breeding of these animals for mohair, milk and goat venison will be developed into an important industry.

While the climatic conditions of the country further south permit the Angora goat to grow hair for only one year before shedding the dry, cool atmosphere of Alberta enables the animal to carry its two years' growth without any fear of shedding. The two-year product is worth upward of $6 a pound. The value of goat meat is equal to that of mutton.

CHURCH OF ALL CREEDS OPENS

Buddhist, Mohammedan and Chinese Preach at Dedication.

New York—A church in which followers of every religion will be free to worship on terms of friendly equality has been opened. The Daily Temple is the name of the new church. The structure, formerly a stable, is small and of red brick construction.

The opening exercises were unpretentious. There was no music, nor formal dedication ceremony. First a young Hindu named Ashwary read from the teachings of Buddha. He was followed by W. T. Wei, a Chinese, who read passages from Confucius. Then Mrs. H. R. Creighton, secretary to Miss Elizabeth Knopf, the patroness of the temple, read a passage from Isaiah. Next Wevad Eyoub, a young Turkish student at Columbia, read a passage from the Khoran.

PLANT LIFE SHOWS WAY.

Mystery of Sex Determination May Be Solved, Thinks Savant.

Birmingham, England—The secret of the determination of sex possibly may be found in plant life. Sir Oliver Joseph Lodge told the British Association at its meeting this afternoon. Referring to the fact that some plants produce both male and female flowers, he said this must be the result of some profound change in the sap at the junction in the stems where differently sexed flowers branch away from each other. He continued:

"I do not know what this is, and the microscope tells me nothing. Perhaps if physiologists could find out what happens in that little plant joint they might get a clue to the reason why some human beings are born boys and others girls."

Pupils Install Motion Pictures.

Kansas City—A motion picture outfit paid for by pupils through entertainments has been installed at the Morse school.

With the machine came several reels of films and slides illustrating a hundred different subjects, teaching geography and showing the industries and pastimes of many countries.

Principal Martin said they are going to do more than merely educate and entertain the pupils with these pictures. They will attempt to form their tastes for good pictures and thus make them a factor in the final eradication of the questionable pictures which are found in so many theatres nowadays, he said.

Unclothed Man Conducts Orchestra.

Berlin—The audience at the Royal Opera House was startled by the sight of an unclothed man who and denly entered the parterre, climbed the orchestra barrier and started to act as conductor of the orchestra. The man was seized, covered with a sheet and dragged away behind the curtain. He was identified as a taxicab driver who suddenly had become insane.

Absent-Minded Benevolence.

A believer in organized charity cites the following as an example of misdirected tender-heartedness:

A very benevolent, but absent-minded old gentleman, riding in his carriage one hot July day, noticed a load in the dusty road gasping with the heat. In the kindness of his heart he climbed down, tenderly moved the poor load into the shade of his carriage, and then, thoroughly satisfied with his good deed, climbed up again and drove on.

UNFORTUNATELY PUT.

Again he approached the solitary sleepy-looking porter and inquired for the twentieth time. "Isn't that train coming soon?" At that moment a dog came trotting up the line, and a glad smile illuminated the official's face. "Ah, yes, sir," replied the porter, "it'll be getting near now. Here comes the engine driver's dog."

EASTER SERVICES SUNDAY ATTENDED BY 1400 PEOPLE.

Sunday was an unusually great day at Locust Street church. The people took advantage of the beautiful day and went to church. Every service was largely attended. Fully fourteen people worshipped in that church throughout the day. The class meeting which was led by W. C. Van Arsdal gave an opportunity for the people to express themselves concerning Easter. It was quickly apparent that they felt deeply the significance and spirit of the day. Their talks showed that they had lived in thought through Passion Week, and had come to the Resurrection morning with the real spirit of the day within them.

The morning service was an inspiration from start to finish. The Easter spirit seemed to grip the waiting congregation before the service began.

The auditorium was soon filled and overflowed into the Sunday school room. The space reserved for the Knights Templar was filled with a large representation of their order.

Miss Lelia Worrell presided at the organ. The quartet consisting of Miss Pafford, Mrs. Scales, Prof. Naylor and Edward Pitkin rendered "Now is Christ Arisen." The pastor preached on "The Resurrection of Jesus and Immortality." Two children, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. McCurry, and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Meyers were presented for baptism. Lawrence and Minetta Wright and Grace Davidson were received into the church as full members, all having been baptized in infancy.

The Sunday school attendance numbered 298. The spirit and interest were all that could be expected. The Epworth League, though not up to the average in numbers, due to the fact that so many of the students were away, had an unusually good meeting. Leslie Miller, the efficient chorister of the league, led the meeting, speaking on "The Joy of Easter."

The day culminated in the children's Easter exercises in the evening. The church has not been so full of people in many a day. Every place was full. Miss Dell Miller assisted by Miss Daisy Stauch, had prepared a program with the children that did all great credit. To see the children with their happy faces was a feast to the eyes. To hear them speak and sing of Jesus and the Resurrection was a feast to the souls of those who attended. All acquitted themselves well and gave what many pronounced the best Easter program the Sunday school had ever given.

Purdue University Exhibits.

"Agricultural educational exhibits with competent men in charge," says Prof. Christie, "are beyond all question, one of the many effective means now in use, in Indiana, for calling attention to the valuable experimental work in crops, soils and live stock, now in progress at Purdue and elsewhere. They serve to impart," he further comments, "information in a direct way, information of great value to all interested in better farming in Indiana. This information is based on our own experimental work and upon that of similar institutions elsewhere likewise upon the experience of the most successful farmers over the state."

The demands for assistance coming from farmers directly and indirectly, are more and more insistent and frequent, as need for better farming impresses itself upon everyone. The Agricultural Extension Department at Purdue has prepared these exhibits to meet such demands. They are designed for use mainly at the various fall fairs.

Purdue exhibits carry numerous practical lessons on soil improvement, selection, care, feeding, breeding of all classes of live stock, dairy herd improvement, better methods in field crop growing, control of farm pests, establishing and caring for an orchard, better home-making, interesting the boys and girls, etc. The facts and suggestions conveyed by the Purdue exhibits are not hidden behind theories and technical statements, but are set forth clearly, practically, and simply. Each of the three or four exhibits available is complete, weighs about a ton, and takes available space up to 50 or 60 running feet. They add a splendid educational feature to any fair and can be had at small cost. Two or three different forms of exhibits can be had this year. Write to Agricultural Extension Department, Purdue University, Lafayette, for detailed information.

CORONER GIVES HIS FINDING IN BROADSTREET DEATH CASE

Dr. C. T. Zaring, county coroner, has filed his report of the investigation of the death of Thomas H. Broadstreet, which occurred Saturday morning, April 11, on a traction car between Coatesville and Greencastle. His death occurred just after the car had crossed the Hendricks-Putnam county line. Dr. Zaring finds that the death was caused by acute dilation of the heart, probably caused by overexertion in running to catch the car.

Defective electrical wiring, as a source of fire in Indiana, caused property owners a loss of $147,503 in eight months' time, according to statistics gathered by the Indiana state fire marshal. The value of the property jeopardized by fire from this source is estimated by the fire marshal as $2,062,204.

"One of the first things to be noticed in these figures," said the fire marshal, "is that a large number of 'defective wiring' fires occur in business houses and property of great value. Although our reports show that 108 fires in eight months were the result of defective wiring, the total value of the property upon which the fires occurred is equal to that jeopardized by the 605 adjoining fires which occurred during this same period. It is consequently of great importance that business men see that all wiring in stores and factories be in safe condition."

Costs 100 Lives Yearly.

In addition to the loss of property which naturally results, the fire marshal is also emphasizing the hazards of defective electrical wiring because of the inevitable dangers to human life. The fire marshal estimates that more than 100 people lose their lives each year in the United States from defective electrical construction. Brass shell sockets, pendant switches and flexible cords in rooms having stoves, bath tubs, sinks or damp floors, are regarded as particularly dangerous to life by the state fire marshal.

"One of the first principles which every property owner should follow," says the fire marshal, "is only to entrust the placing and care of electrical fixtures to a competent electrical engineer. There is too much wiring done by amateurs and novices. Wherever possible, and especially in all business houses, all wiring should be placed in conduit."

For the purpose of assisting property owners in protecting buildings, from loss by defective wiring, the fire marshal has issued the following rules:

Rules for Safety.

1. Do not carry lamps about the premises unless they are equipped with portable cords and proper guards. The ordinary lampcord is not sufficiently insulated for portable use. Portable lamps without wire guards are often laid down on stock, and left. Fire results.

2. Do not immediately replace fuses in case of accident. Report the trouble and have the cause located. Nearly always when a fuse burns out there is a defect somewhere that may cause serious fire.

3. Keep inflammable material, such as paper, away from lamps and sockets.

4. Do not hang lamp cords on nails, fixtures or other fixtures that will conduct electricity.

5. Keep stock, boxes and barrels away from fires.

6. Keep cut-out and fuse cabinets clean and do not use them for storage.

The fire marshal states that many difficulties are encountered in the attempt to make clear to property owners the dangers of defective wiring. In many instances, he says, citizens cannot be convinced until it is too late that fire may result from short circuit or exposure of inflammable materials to heated globes.

FARMERS WANT MORE MOVABLE SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURE

From G. M. Frier of the Agriculture Extension Department of Purdue University, comes the following concerning short courses just held in Indiana and those to be held during the coming season. One of the biggest features of extension work in this state this year has been the Farmers' Short Courses. Sixteen of them were held during the past season December to March. The average attendance was over 700. Over 11,000 farm folk were thus reached directly. Each course consisted of about 25 practical lectures and about 20 classroom or laboratory periods. The work was given by a corps of eight people from the staff of Purdue University. A carload of classroom and lecture room material including twelve head of choice livestock was carried to each short course. The use of this material went a long way toward making the work concrete, practical and interesting. Classes and lectures were given in soils, crops, poultry, dairying, horticulture, livestock and home economics. It is planned next season to hold fifteen to twenty of these courses or schools and to improve further on the equipment and arrangement for the work. Applications are already in for half the number of courses that can be held during the coming season. Until the applications of all places desired short courses are in, it cannot be known what localities will fit together into suitable circuits for this year. It is desirable therefore that applications be prepared and sent in to the Agricultural Extension Department, Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind., before the first of June. To any local leaders who are contemplating a short course, a circular of information will be sent on application.

For the purpose of assisting property owners in protecting buildings, from loss by defective wiring, the fire marshal has issued the following rules:

Rules for Safety.

1. Do not carry lamps about the premises unless they are equipped with portable cords and proper guards. The ordinary lampcord is not sufficiently insulated for portable use. Portable lamps without wire guards are often laid down on stock, and left. Fire results.

2. Do not immediately replace fuses in case of accident. Report the trouble and have the cause located. Nearly always when a fuse burns out there is a defect somewhere that may cause serious fire.

3. Keep inflammable material, such as paper, away from lamps and sockets.

4. Do not hang lamp cords on nails, fixtures or other fixtures that will conduct electricity.

5. Keep stock, boxes and barrels away from fires.

6. Keep cut-out and fuse cabinets clean and do not use them for storage.

The fire marshal states that many difficulties are encountered in the attempt to make clear to property owners the dangers of defective wiring. In many instances, he says, citizens cannot be convinced until it is too late that fire may result from short circuit or exposure of inflammable materials to heated globes.

FARMERS WANT MORE MOVABLE SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURE

From G. M. Frier of the Agriculture Extension Department of Purdue University, comes the following concerning short courses just held in Indiana and those to be held during the coming season. One of the biggest features of extension work in this state this year has been the Farmers' Short Courses. Sixteen of them were held during the past season December to March. The average attendance was over 700. Over 11,000 farm folk were thus reached directly. Each course consisted of about 25 practical lectures and about 20 classroom or laboratory periods. The work was given by a corps of eight people from the staff of Purdue University. A carload of classroom and lecture room material including twelve head of choice livestock was carried to each short course. The use of this material went a long way toward making the work concrete, practical and interesting. Classes and lectures were given in soils, crops, poultry, dairying, horticulture, livestock and home economics. It is planned next season to hold fifteen to twenty of these courses or schools and to improve further on the equipment and arrangement for the work. Applications are already in for half the number of courses that can be held during the coming season. Until the applications of all places desired short courses are in, it cannot be known what localities will fit together into suitable circuits for this year. It is desirable therefore that applications be prepared and sent in to the Agricultural Extension Department, Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind., before the first of June. To any local leaders who are contemplating a short course, a circular of information will be sent on application.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to thank our neighbors and friends who so kindly assisted us at the death of our beloved wife and mother.

John Ragland and Daughters.

Accused of "Interfering."

"Donn Roberts left shortly afterward. Several persons presented themselves whom I challenged. In about half an hour a man they call 'Tufty' Butler came up. He beckoned his head to me and said he wanted to talk. Butler wanted to know what I meant by 'interfering with the voting.' He said I would have to get out, but I refused to go. I went to take off my overcoat and Butler put his hand back on his hip and said, 'don't start anything, I can beat you to it.'"

Butler began talking in a loud tone. Patrolman Beattie came up between us and caught Butler by the shoulder. Butler pulled away and struck me behind the right ear with his fist. Butler was arrested. He was given a hearing in the City Court before Judge Batt.

"Was Judge Batt the same man mentioned in this indictment with Mr. Roberts?"

"Yes."

"Did you testify at that trial?"

"No; I was not summoned to the trial. I saw the entry, which indicated that Butler had been given a hearing, 'judgment withheld.'"

The witness testified that he kept between twenty and thirty-five persons from voting in that precinct; that all refused to swear to the same affidavit. He told of seeing Joe Jeffers, the Taylorville henchman of Roberts, near the polls for quite awhile that day.

Traction Company Mentioned.

An effort of the defense to inject the traction company as an issue in the case failed when objections to questions were sustained.

Other evidence supporting testimony regarding crooked registrations in Precinct H of the First Ward was brought out by testimony of S. Perry Douglass, president of the city board of election commissions.

Former testimony showed that the registration place of this precinct was kept open only one day, and that there were 398 names on the books. According to Mr. Douglass, who inquired of members of the registration board after 6 o'clock that day, there were then only 175 names registered, showing that 223 more names were put on the books before closing time, less than two hours afterward, if the registration laws were obeyed. Douglass testified that Earl Harkness, the inspector, told him the next morning that he (Harkness) worked most of the night before on the registrations.

"When I saw Earl Harkness the next morning at his home," said Mr. Douglass, "I asked him why he did not keep open the registration place another day, as I knew that a petition properly signed, had been presented to the board. Mr. Harkness told me that they had everybody registered, and that it was not necessary to hold open another day. He said he had worked nearly all the night on the registration."

Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Bates will move from their home on west Washington street to Portland, Ind., where the former is employed in a drug store, Tuesday. Mr. Bates left several months ago has lived at Portland but his family have lived here. He was employed at the Cook Drug store for several months.
